

Micro Advantage Privacy Policy

Micro Advantage does not collect, store, sell or otherwise distribute any information from or about our customers and/or their Internet activities. The technical information recorded in server log files is used only for troubleshooting technical issues. Log files are retained for a finite period of time and none of the data from server logs is retained in any database. All customer information in the Micro Advantage billing system is used only to invoice the customer for services and products rendered.